Welcome to Our Special America 250 Version of...

... the Annual Collector Car Guide (CCG) Directory. We take this opportunity to celebrate America's 250th year through July 4, 2026 by embracing the America 250 program. As American motoring enthusiasts, freedom on the open road represents one of our most important liberties. This time reminds us that freedom is not free and we should never take the liberties as established by our founders for granted!

It's hard to believe that more than half of this great nation's saga contains automotive history. Over 125 years ago, the Duryea Motor Wagon chiefly transformed the "horseless carriage" into a new era and inspired Henry Ford to build automobiles for the masses!

But freedom on the open road in America is not limited to domestic vehicles. We have the freedom of choice to drive whatever make and model we choose, stock, custom or modified; this is what CCG is all about! We are here to help provide you with the best collector car experiences. This requires us to establish high standards and screen our advertising to represent the best in the automotive industry in the Mid-Atlantic region. In turn, this has elevated our references in print and online to the "Most Trusted" status according to our audience.

It's not easy to remake a dilapidated car or truck into a show winner. However, it can be almost as laborious just to maintain a vehicle's body, interior and components. Even if you are a do-it-yourselfer, our popular headings are joined by new categories this year with vendors who can help you with your projects and other necessary services. For example, Brake Sleeving and Rebuilding, Car Audio and Electronics, Estate Sales, Insurance, Off-Road Truck and Show Boards, just to name a few. (For the complete index, see page 2).

Since the advertisers throughout these categories generally do not ask, please mention that you found them in Collector Car Guide!

As part of the America 250 experience, I recommend you to take advantage of the Great American Road Trip to see America in your dream car or truck. Go to www.roadtripinamerica.com, created by the US Department of Transportation to peruse all of the places where you can visit!

Of course by frequenting www.CollectorCarGuide.net you can stay up-to-date on all of the latest information, our vendors, shows, blogs, and more throughout the year. I hope to see you soon!

What is Diminished Value?

Diminished Value (D.V.) is the amount of loss in value that a vehicle incurs because it was involved in an accident. DV can be defined in the difference in value of a vehicle just prior to an accident and the value after it has been repaired. Although DV would usually apply to late model vehicles, collector vehicles are still eligible for diminished value.

Think of it this way: Let's say you were in the market to purchase a used vehicle and find two cars that fit your criteria—both have equal mileage, the same options and both are offered at the same price. The ONLY difference between the two is that one vehicle was in a previous wreck while the other had no collision history. Which one would you buy?

There are two possible claims for Diminished Value: First-Party and Third-Party Claims. First-party claims are not usually eligible. Third-party claims, however, are almost always eligible to be filed against the other party's insurance carrier. Your success in obtaining a diminished value claim improves dramatically by filing the correct forms and working with an expert who can navigate the hurdles that the insurance company may provide. These experienced experts also perform post-repair inspections as well as pre-purchase inspections for would be buyers.

Article provided compliments of Auto Appraisal Network—Mid-Atlantic. For more information or to file a diminished value claim and/or obtain a post-repair or pre-purchase inspection to protect your investment, call Randy Williams at 410-355-5500. See our ad next page.

TIP: After an accident, you may be able to collect for this loss in value from the "at fault" insurance company.

Save the Manuals! Manual Shifting Becomes "a Thing of the Past" for New Vehicle Owners

In 2025, because of ever more complicated power-trains and stricter emissions, many models are bidding farewell to their manual transmissions. When available, expect to pay more. Not limited to new vehicles, this trend increases the value of collector cars by as much as 10%. And another benefit of manuals—they are a great theft deterrent!

TIP

The "ranger method" is used to draw out old fluids such as power steering or clutch fluid with a turkey baster. It is not as effective as draining the fluid but is utilized when it is not possible. Run your car after extracting the fluid and repeat the process until the fluid is clean.

To promote small businesses, the backbone of our local economy, who employ the best, most knowledgeable and experienced staff to perform your needed services.

To help connect you with other car hobbyists that share your passion about your make and model as well as other makes/models you admire through events and clubs. "We came for the cars... we stayed for the friends," is a slogan used by many car clubs

To promote the continuation of the collector car hobby to the next generation

This helps to preserve, protect and promote appreciation of our investment in the future.

To educate the public how collector cars are part of our heritage and freedom on the open road. For 2025-2026 this includes the America 250 Celebration and Great American Road Trip.

Why Get Paint Protection Film (PPF)?

Paint protection film, or “PPF” is a clear urethane that gets installed on the front end and major wear areas of a vehicle to stop stone chips, scratches, and minor parking lot mishaps from damaging your finish. It is a very challenging product to install and takes a long time to get good at it. When you buy a vehicle that is special, or just special to you, and you want to keep it looking great for a longer period of time, it is a good investment.

Popular coverage areas on modern vehicles include the front bumper, hood, and both front fenders. Optional coverage areas include the leading edge of side-view mirrors, A-pillars, rocker panels, in front and behind the rear tire, and behind the door handles. Some folks will have the whole vehicle finish covered for the ultimate in protection.

Most importantly, always seek out a quality installer that you know will be around to service you in the future, should the need arise.

This article provided by Westminster Speed & Sound. They are the most awarded Vehicle Technology company in the Mid-Atlantic, serving their clients since 1969. For more information, visit www.WestminsterSpeed.com or call 410-857-5300. See our ad next page.

TIP: Years ago, there was a common industry misconception that older R-12 based AC systems would need to be replaced by R-134a equivalent. More recently, it was discovered that if 100% of the R-12 oil and refrigerant is removed and the system is cleaned, that R-134a actually works with the older system after changing the fittings. This process should only be performed by a professional—since mixing both types could create spontaneous combustion.

BEWARE of Third-Party Extended Warranties!

Unless through an automobile manufacturer or dealer, most, if not all third-party extended warranties are a scam you should avoid. In reality, this is an insurance policy issued by companies that provide convincing, often misleading advertisements about coverages. If you go online to do your research, you will discover the majority have poor ratings and many lawsuits filed. This occurs when shops file claims that are refused frequently. Or at best, you have to fight with them to cover a repair. Read the fine print before signing any policy. These “warranty” companies require regular maintenance in the policy. There may be other limitations. As a good caretaker of your vehicle, you (or your reputable shop) will perform these services anyway, which will enhance the life of your vehicle. So why waste your money when you are better off paying for repairs when you need them.

Expected Expenditures When Purchasing a Classic

When purchasing a classic, antique, muscle car, hot rod, or any collectible vehicle, are there potential additional expenses you can expect to incur? In a nutshell, yes! Any older vehicle is going to have things that need replacing no matter how well maintained it was. Those tires look new, don't next morning and find that it won't start? What happened while sitting that caused a stationary part to fail? Sometimes it just happens. Are you shipping your car across the country? Things can and do go wrong in the finest of transporters. A car that has had limited use is now bouncing down the highway in an enclosed transporter and things get loose or even worse, break. Is this the seller or transporter's fault...maybe not?

Is the car you purchased a custom or hot rod, with mostly aftermarket parts? Although the tolerances and specs on aftermarket parts have greatly improved, you're still putting parts together that were manufactured by different companies. Sometimes a new or fresh restoration with no (or very few) miles needs a little more sorting to get it right.

they? They look great and have plenty of tread, so they must be road worthy. Check the date code, you and the seller might be surprised to know that the tires are 10 years old or even older. So many of these classics are driven sparingly that you (or the seller) don't realize that although there are only a couple of hundred miles on the tires, dry rot and deterioration can set in when they have been on a car for many years. Especially if stored on a cold concrete floor.

What other items might need replacing? Just about any mechanical or electrical device might need replacing sooner rather than later. How many times have you parked a car, only to come out the

Always plan on having some additional expenditures when purchasing an older vehicle either because of breakage or you just might want to make some upgrades and changes to personalize that "new" classic you just purchased.

The Importance of Agreed Value Coverage for Your Collector Car

Agreed Value Insurance is coverage where the insurer and policyholder agree in advance on the value of an insured asset. In this case, your classic car! Unlike traditional insurance, which reimburses based on actual cash value (factoring in depreciation from wear and tear, mileage, and age) agreed value policies ensure a predetermined payout in the event of a total loss.

This type of insurance is commonly used for high-value or unique assets where replacement can be difficult to accomplish.

Negotiating with standard insurers after an incident with your classic car is one of the most stressful things to go through. An agreed value policy eliminates uncertainty by locking in a fixed amount based on appraisals, expert evaluations, or purchase prices at the time of policy issuance.

Additionally, premiums for agreed value policies tend to be lower than standard coverage, because of the usage guidelines. Your classic is not used as much as your daily, so why pay the same rate?

Agreed value insurance is ideal for those who own vehicles with appreciating values, offering peace of mind that they will be fully compensated in case of a total loss.

Make Your Desires Regarding Your Collector Car Collection NOW!

While in “the throws” of enjoying your classic car today, we don’t usually think of its future “down the road.” Regardless of the ongoing maintenance we provide, moving forward, the goal usually is improvement in some way for the vehicle, but how about its ownership?

Or do you have an interest in adding to your collection? Occasionally, enthusiasts or even friends may make an offer to buy a classic vehicle, but the owner does not want to sell. Sometimes, the easiest way to acquire your dream vehicle is to purchase it through a dealer, agent, auction or private sale.

Along these lines, you should have a written plan that expresses your wishes and share it with your loved ones. Is your “next of kin” interested in continuing your legacy to keep your collector car in the family?

Whatever your intentions: to add to your collection, pass on the vehicle(s) to enthusiast family members or sell it off, your written plan will create peace of mind. Consider including this plan as part of a will, which will help prepare your family members. And in fact, to maintain family harmony, in the case there was no one in the next generation interested in their classic car(s), some collectors have had the foresight to sell their collections before passing on.

Provided compliments of Sell My Classic Car. For a free evaluation to sell your classic car, call Chuck at 301-213-7129. See our ad page 3.

How to “Shop” For Your Restoration Facility

Every owner has a particular expectation for his or her collector vehicle. Most projects are “stalled” and don’t require a complete, expensive restoration. Piecemealing work in smaller steps where possible makes it more feasible, affordable and even pleasurable to get back onto the road. Plenty of shops want to help make this happen. Evaluating expectations within a realistic scope is the best way to approach any restoration project, big or small.

Keep in mind that a successful restoration is based on matching your expectations with the shop’s. With the “meeting of the minds,” moving forward there will be no disappointments. Understand that it’s nearly impossible to get accurate upfront quotes on 50+-year old vehicles. With a range from best to worst scenario at the start, any reputable shop wants you to visit and provide your input every step of the way to the finish. After old paint and primer are stripped, and disassembly if needed, the shop will invite you back to inspect any required or optional work.

Outlining your expectations and developing a plan in writing is the best approach to present to potential. First determine if you want a totally stock, somewhat modified or total customization. Some shops only restore to stock specs, others focus on customization, while a few do it all. This will narrow your search as well.

Your plan should also convey how you intend to use the vehicle. Will it be driven often, just to shows and cruises or strictly trailered? This will help you determine if you would go with an original or modern drivetrain, suspension and brakes.

Unforeseen labor and parts are almost a guarantee when pulling apart a decades-old machine so account for flexibility in your budget. Stay away from shops that require a large deposit or only accept full restoration projects when you only require a partial job. A wise enthusiast will look for a shop that takes a small deposit and makes frequent payments to match the amount of performed work so that either party is not too far extended.

Time availability? Quality shops with affordable prices are popular and may have a wait time before beginning work. So once you choose your facility, get on their waiting list!

Presented compliments of East Coast Restorations of Maryland. For more information on the restoration process, call Mark Gregory at 443-690-1600 or visit www.EastCoastRestorationsofMD.com. See our ad next page.

Why Your Independent Garage is Your Best Option

For those of us who do not wrench on our own car (at least on large repairs), consider developing a relationship with a reputable local shop, such as those listed below. Quality local independent shops prioritize customer satisfaction to provide you only the services and repairs you actually need. Their employees are usually paid by the hour. Through the expansion of a satisfied customer base, many independent shops maintain a steady workflow, which keeps them trustworthy. In contrast, large chains and car dealers employ service writers (and even mechanics) that are compensated on a commission basis. Avoid any chain that pays commissions as this provides incentive to pad your bill. To increase profit margins, they may also install lower quality parts with higher markups. They often have higher employee turnover as well, utilizing techs that may not have as much knowledge or experience. Chains often provide offers for a low-cost oil change with a free inspection. This “doorbuster” option provides them the opportunity to perform repairs or replace parts that are not necessary.
